About On Animals. This volume is a project in systematic theology: a rigorous engagement with the Christian tradition in relation to animals under the doctrinal headings of creation, reconciliation and redemption and in dialogue with the Bible and theological voices central to the tradition. The book shows that such engagement with the tradition with the question of the animal in mind produces surprising answers that challenge modern anthropocentric assumptions.

He classified the major groups of animals as birds, fishes, insects and whales. Aristotle is called the "Father of biological taxonomy." Theophrastus (370-385 B.C.) who was the student of Plato and then of Aristotle, is known as the "Father of Botany", classified all plants on the basis of form and texture and divided them into trees, shrubs, under-shrubs and herbs.

This book presents an authoritative and comprehensive survey of human practice in relation to other animals, together with a Christian ethical analysis building on the theological account of animals which David Clough developed in On Animals Volume I: Systematic Theology (2012). It argues that a Christian understanding of other animals has radical implications for their treatment by humans, with the human use and abuse of non-human animals for food the most urgent immediate priority.
