Education for Social Change: From Theory to Practice. Alan Singer Michael Pezone. 1.1 More than a century ago, Emile Durkheim rejected the idea that education could be the force to transform society and resolve social ills. Instead, Durkheim concluded that education “can be reformed only if society itself is reformed.”

Education for Social Change: From Theory to Practice

Teachers are the agents of change, education the stimulus and the students are the recipients and preservers of change. At the individual level, education eradicates ignorance. Children at an early age are taught principles that are not only beneficial to them, but also to their society. This is the most effective method of bringing social change, because children never lose whatever is taught to them at a young age easily, unless they are mentally challenged.
