The faith that Salzberg refers to is trusting your own deepest intuition, having self-confidence, and knowing that doubting is not a sign of being faithless—it is a key to spiritual strength. This is from a Buddhist perspective, but she includes information from other spiritual guides from other belief systems.

“Faith is a willingness to take the next step, to see the unknown as an adventure, to launch a journey,” teaches Sharon Salzberg. On this four-hour program Salzberg invites you to explore: • the crucial first step in the faith journey: embracing impermanence – the ever-changing nature of the world

Faith - Sharon Salzberg

The faith I describe in this book does not require a belief system, is not necessarily connected to a deity or God, though it doesn't deny one. This faith is not a commodity we either have or don't have – it is an inner quality that unfolds as we learn to trust our own deepest experience.”

Faith - Sharon Salzberg

A kind of faith in oneself, emphasizing a love and respect for ourselves. This kind of faith unearths our connection to all people, not a faith used as a tool of making you or I a separate entity. Faith doesn't necessarily require belief, it is a trust. A trust in ourselves through a waking up to who we really are.

Faith: Trusting Your Own Deepest... book by Sharon Salzberg

A revealing, thought-provoking memoir of her journey to faith. While very personal in nature, it leaves you with much to ponder for your own practice, whatever it might be. Well-written, you'll keep it as a book to read again. Her generosity is amazing, her honesty equally so. She earns your trust and fully deserves it.
