The Romans agreed that the Jews' one God was the same universal God their gods reported to, that all gods reported to. This is a sort of syncretism that Greer and many modern polytheist reject. Which is OK. It doesn't bother me, or God.

"A World Full of Gods: An Inquiry into Polytheism" by John ...

The core of his argument is, in fact, that there are probably many gods. In the first part of the book, he lays out many of the common explanations or theologies of monotheism— why there must be only one God, what that God must do or be in the world, and how that God's power, knowledge and good-will must be infinite.

Keith Hopkins' A World Full of Gods is a book important to any—Christian or atheist—who wants a grasp on how the teachings of the church (Catholic/Orthodox/Protestant) arose in the earliest centuries. I would not recommend this book to a nascent Christian who must believe stories about miracles to be stories of historical fact.
