Opel Ascona And Manta B

The original Ascona/1900-based Opel Manta went away at the end of its 1975 model year, even in Europe. Over there, Manta and Ascona were treated to a new rear-drive chassis to see the lines into the '80s; the coupe version very nearly made it to the '90s. The basics were the same--front-engined, four-cylinder, rear-wheel drive, coil-sprung solid-axle rear suspension--but refinement levels increased, as did build solidity.

Opel began the 1970s with a model offensive. The new midsize models that made their debut in 1970 were called Ascona and Manta. As a two and four-door limousine, the Ascona was positioned exactly between Kadett and Rekord. The Ascona was also a trendsetter: the Caravan estate was the first compact lifestyle estate and therefore far ahead of its time.

The first change took place in January 1976, when laminated window glass became available as a no-cost option.

Compared with the Group 4 Ascona, the Group B Manta made full use of Kevlar body panels; the front air dam / fascia, front wings (fenders), bonnet (hood), doors, rear arches, boot (trunk) lid and rear spoiler – this saved about 70 kg (150 lbs) of weight over the Ascona.

In 1979 work began on a rally-spec Opel. Both the Ascona B and the Manta B were used for this. The Ascona 400 model was the more successful of the two, largely due to better weight distribution. Opel joined forces with German tuner Irmscher and Cosworth in Britain, to make the 400. Cosworth was given the task to develop a 16-valve 2-cam head for the CIH spec engine block, and Irmscher who earlier in 1977 and 78 had proven that they knew their way around an Opel building the i2800, was to ...
