City of god is Sara Miles' proclamation of love for God, God's people, and the Mission District of San Francisco, "a place so mixed, so layered, and apparently impure that it proclaims a love vaster than humans can come up with on our own." In beautiful poetic language, she tells the story of bringing Christianity out of church buildings by marking friends, neighbors and strangers with the sign of the cross on Ash Wednesday.

The angry wrangling
between the two communities prompted Augustine to begin
writing The City of God in 413. The first ten books of The City of God, which make up
the first part of the work, refute the pagans' charges that

Christians brought about the fall of Rome. The first five books deal with the pagan belief that people must worship the old gods to achieve material advantages in this world, including the continuation of the Roman Empire and the supremacy of the city of Rome.

Once again, Sara Miles provides a loving, strong, biblical approach to her Christian faith. Her books are inspiring; Having finished City of God, I'm re-reading her two earlier books as a Lenten study.

sets the determination of the City of God as the collection of people who put love and faith in God ahead of love and faith in themselves. "the universe is beautified even by sinners, though, considered by themselves, their deformity is a sad blemish."
