Economics in One Lesson is an introduction to economics written by Henry Hazlitt and first published in 1946. It is based on Frédéric Bastiat's essay Ce qu'on voit et ce qu'on ne voit pas. The "One Lesson" is stated in Part One of the book: The art of economics consists in looking not merely at the immediate but at the longer effects of any act or policy; it consists in tracing the consequences of that policy not merely for one group but for all groups. Part Two consists of twenty-four ...

Having read a number of books about economics and banking, history and politics, I believe that Economics In One Lesson stands out as the most important book on the subject area. It is setup as a series of 23 different examples describing everyday occurrences to illustrate fundamental economic principles.
