Watt's is used to measure power. And when we are talking about watt's related the guitar amps, watt's tells the output power of the amplifier, aka. how powerful the amplifier is. It's counted by multiplying Volts (Pressure of Electricity) with Amps (Amount of electricity). So, watt's doesn't measure sound loudness.

A good guitar amp for a beginner is solid-state with a speaker in the 8-12" range. These little amps are usually 10-20 watts. This is more than enough power for a newbie to get started. Look for features like onboard digital effects, reverb and of course good-quality distortion.

How Many Watts Do You Need for a Good Guitar Amp ...

The basic rule is, your amp head's power output, usually indicated by watts, shouldn't exceed the wattage rating of your speakers. If my amp is rated at 200 watts, and I was powering a 100-watt speaker, then the speakers would probably blow after turning the volume up past 5 or 6 because amps use more of their power at higher volume.

Understanding Guitar Amps Watts, Ohms, and Speaker Wiring ...

Keep in mind that wattage ratings are not linear, so a 100 watt amp is not twice the volume of a 50 watt amp. You will experience diminishing returns as you go up in wattage. In fact, the difference between 100 and 50 is only a few db, surprisingly. Wattage indicates power, but power is not directly equal to volume.

Hybrid amps may not be the most common anymore, but they still have their place in the guitar amp world. Normally they would use a valve preamp with a solid-state power amplifier. This generally means the amp would be more reliable and would have the classic solid-state high frequency response that was popular with metal guitarists in the 80's and 90's.

And if you want an exact number to start with...20W or 30W will most likely give you maximum versatility in each of these settings.

Valve amps sound louder than solid state amps, so even though a 15-watt valve amp is loud enough for gigs, a 15-watt solid state amp will be only recommended for home practice. Good solid state amps include the Orange Crush 20 RT and Blackstar ID:30TVP 30W. Both are loud enough for mid-sized venues and sound superb.

What's the Right Amp for You? Guitar Amp Buying Guide

You'll need at least 30 watts for playing live with a rock band, but smaller amps often provide surprisingly huge sounds in the studio—just ask Jimmy Page. Also, as a rule of thumb, if you're playing out often, you might want to shoot for at least 15 watts of tube tone.⁰⁴.

Simply put, a higher wattage tube amp is louder, but because of reasons a bit too complex to go into here, the perceived volume of a tube amp at the same wattage as a solid-state amp will be louder. This is why you can probably gig with a 20W tube head for smaller shows, whereas a 20W solid-state won't cut it.

Wattage also has a different implication when it comes to solid-state power-amps. The perceived volume per tube watt is much greater than its transistor counterpart. For example, to get a similar volume to the 22-watt original, the Fender Tone Master Deluxe Reverb has to put a whole 100 watts to work.
