Chapter 10 Error Detection and Correction

In computing, telecommunication, information theory, and coding theory, an error correction code, sometimes error correcting code, is used for controlling errors in data over unreliable or noisy communication channels. The central idea is the sender encodes the message with redundant information in the form of an ECC. The redundancy allows the receiver to detect a limited number of errors that may occur anywhere in the message, and often to correct these errors without retransmission. The Americ

If we use one bit per class, such as for 4-bit codewords for classes C1 through C4, then this is equivalent to the one-versus-all approach, and the codes are not sufficient to self-correct.
