The Writing of the Disaster by Maurice Blanchot
The writing of the disaster is where the ashes of those who remain without a grave are buried.

Testimonial and testamentary literature, testamentary because it is testimonial. 3 The notion of disaster is a particularly complex movement of thinking, because as is often the case with Blanchot, concepts unfold in paradoxes, or even in aporias. The notion of disaster firstly challenges our representation of time in so far as it includes at the same time what has already taken place and, also ...

The Writing Of Disaster Maurice Blanchot
The disaster does not concern itself with content, the disaster possesses the writing and is not and cannot be the subject of the writing. The writing of the disaster is not so much writing about the disaster as writing in the force-field of the disaster: The Writing of the Disaster concerns itself with the ways in which trauma takes ownership of writing. The ‘of’ in the title signals possession in the same way, perhaps, that all objects possess their subjects and by this relationship ...
